RESEARCH

Light, Bar and Wang, Wenyu, Experimentation, Biased Learning, and Conjectural Variations in Competitive Dynamic Pricing 2026

- We study how competing sellers adjust prices over time in modern retail and online markets. In today's business management, firms rely on ongoing price experiments, even though demand is shaped by competitors' actions and market uncertainty.
- We find that these practices can unintentionally lead firms to anticipate and accommodate competitors' reactions, resulting in higher, less competitive prices, especially when pricing changes are synchronized.
